A Small, but a Gateway Town to Japan

Kansai International Airport

Another Side of Tajiri Town
There are full of substantial facilities and attractive events, where lots of people gather and interact.

The Kansai International Airport, which opened in 1994, is an international hub airport capable of operating 24 hours a day, providing one of the international and domestic networks in the country. It is positioned as the west international gateway to Japan, and the number of air passengers is renewing the record high every year.

A Small Town Full of History and Culture

Kasuga Shrine

Banzaiki, an ancient chronicle book, says that a man named Kosaji from Yoshimi settled in this area in the late 8th century. He developed the land, established a village, and invited Grand Dely Kasuga Daimyoin to open the shrine. It is a distance of 300 m, or a 3-min walk from Yoshimosato Station on the Nankai Main Line.

Monument of Senshu Onion Developers

The monument was erected in 1913 to honor the onion cultivation of three developers. It is carved the history of onion cultivation and the production of onion at that time. It is a distance of 400 m, or a 4-min walk from Yoshimosato Station on the Nankai Main Line.

Kasho Shrine

In the Tokugawa Shogunate era, this shrine was called Inari Daimyoin. The main hall has been designated as Osaka Prefecture's tangible cultural heritage. It is a distance of 900 m, or a 15-min walk from Yoshimosato Station on the Nankai Main Line.

Autumn Festival

It is rare to see a yagura and a danjiri (different types of floats) gather in front of the Town Hall. Dates: A Saturday and Sunday early in October Place: Entire area of Tajiri Town

Clipping Data on Town

The prosperity of the spinning industry was the cornerstone of the development of Tajiri Town.

Tajiri History Museum (also called Ai-land House)

The Tajiri History Museum is an example of the rare architecture created in early 20th century, where a Western-style building of Art Nouveau type that has an interior decorated with splendid stained glass is annexed with a Japanese-style building. Originally, Fusazo Taniguchi, who was born in Tajiri Town, constructed the buildings as his secondary residence with a guest house adjacent to his Yoshimi spinning factory. The Tajiri History Museum is a place that makes us realize the prosperity of the spinning industry that became the cornerstone of the development of the town as well as the entrepreneur's varied sense and artistic grounded abilities.

Full of Delicious Produce in a Small Town

The Senshu onion is characterized by its high water content, sweetness, and softness.

Senshu Onion

(Harvesting time: around May)
The Senshu onion has been grown for a long time in Tajiri Town, which is regarded as the birthplace of the Senshu onion. Yoshimi's early maturing variety of the Senshu onion, which is now referred to as the "phantom onion", is flat and rich in moisture. Therefore, it does not last for a long time. However, its flesh is soft and very sweet.

Senshu Mizunasu (Var. of Eggplant)

(Harvesting time: from June through September)
Senshu mizunasu is characterized by its very soft skin and flesh with a high water content. Recently, the lightly salted mizunasu pickle has become famous all over the country.

Conger Eels

(November through June)
The landing volume of conger eel catches is ranked high at Tajiri Fishing Port. Conger eels are eaten in tempura (deep-fried in a light batter) or kabayaki (dipped and broiled in soy-based sauce).

Izumi Octopuses

(July through December)
Osaka Bay is abundant in food for octopuses. It is possible to catch octopuses, which are delicious and tender. Octopus sashimi and octopus with mixed rice are recommended dishes.

Ikanago no Kugini (Sand Eels Boiled Down in Soy Sauce)

Sand eel catches are said to herald the coming of spring in Osaka Bay, and people can enjoy food made from fresh sand eels from February through March. Ikanago no kugini goes well with rice, and can be preserved for long.
